Description of the Reimbursable Advisory Services

A. Reimbursable Advisory Services. The objective of this RAS is to provide technical assistance and support to the Client to help them strengthen its education strategy, its ability to implement said strategy, and to provide recommendations for action to improve quality of education.

Except as the Client and the Bank may otherwise agree, the RAS shall include the following activities and deliverables:

RESEARCH INFRASTRUCTURE DEVELOPMENT: SUPPORT TO PREPARE THE PROPOSED ROADMAP

Research infrastructures (RI) present a core of national research and innovation systems and their quality is essential for efficient development of new knowledge and knowledge-based societies. Process of RI development should involve a wide range of stakeholders on different governance levels and be focused on maximization of RIs contribution to the creation, dissemination and utilization of new knowledge, as well as their contribution to the achievement of policy objectives.

As the process of setting up, financing and operation of RIs is costly and complex, it should be based on strategic assessment and analysis of demand for RIs among main target groups (e.g. researchers, businesses and students) and potential long-term socio-economic impact of major RIs. The initial steps should include mapping of the existing research infrastructures and development of national and/or sectoral roadmaps, followed by defining qualitative and quantitative result indicators, as well as development of comprehensive cost-benefit analysis and decision-making tools for identification and selection of major investments into RIs. That should be complemented with an effective monitoring and evaluation framework, which will facilitate efficient performance of RIs as well as learning by all stakeholders.
Under this agreement, the Bank will support the Client in the preparation of a proposed roadmap based on the National RIS3 Strategy and an entrepreneurial discovery process to effectively target potential funding sources.

1.1. Best practice analysis and research quality improvement
The Bank will assess the approach used by the Client in the preparation of a roadmap and provide recommendations on strategies and implementation processes to improve research infrastructure towards quality and relevance on the basis of relevant best practices.

In particular, the Bank will provide recommendations on potential improvements to research infrastructure and quality in areas in the proposed roadmap such as on:

- strengthening research financing and the methodology to evaluate return on investment on research;
- identifying solutions (e.g. blockchain) to overcome challenges related to management of research infrastructure, data sharing, data privacy;
- identifying scalable models for impact evaluation as a basis for evidence-based policy making in the areas of research and innovation;
- shift of focus from only using results to measure achievement of national/EU targets towards using results for: enhanced socio-economic impact, budget allocations, research accountability, programme design and policy decisions.

Moreover, the support will cover issues related to: accurate estimate of demand for research and innovations (by researchers, universities, businesses, industries, students) in alignment with national and EU strategies and plans and how to more effectively integrate the higher education sector and public research organizations with other entities involved in public and privately-funded science and research and development.

The Bank will also support the Client address how monitoring and evaluation could provide a set of tools enabling verification and improvement of quality, efficiency and effectiveness of policies and programmes at different stages of implementation (ex-ante, interim, ex-post, …).

Finally, the Bank will provide recommendations on best practices covering the process of roadmap development and revision/update, as well as the general and specific evaluation criteria for RIs which are included in national roadmaps. Based on selection criteria (e.g. country size and GDP, excellence in RDI, institutional similarity to Slovakia), a list of potential best practice cases will be presented to the Client and the Bank will carry out an analysis of a best practice of the selected cases.

1.2. Template and guidelines with link to proposed roadmap and Research and Innovation Strategy for Smart Specialization (RIS3 strategy)
The Bank will support the Client in its preparation of a national template and guidelines to evaluate and align with the research and innovation strategy and to direct research to benefit the overall national strategic objectives in this area (such as support to economic growth on the basis of science and improving the quality of human resources for innovation).

1.3 Review the roadmap and provide recommendations for its finalization

Based on the above, the Bank will provide further support to the Client on the draft roadmap to be prepared by the Client to help them finalize the document. The support will focus on the priority areas, such as facilitating adequate research infrastructure and processes in the Slovak Republic to meet the national agenda. The Bank will also help the Client identify research infrastructure capability requirements to execute the roadmap. Moreover, the Bank will also support the Client carry out a consultative process with relevant stakeholders such as members of the research community, universities, industry, federal, state and territory governments, publicly funded research agencies and operators of research infrastructure facilities.
